

Managing Sanctions in AssureHCP™

The Situation

A leading pharmaceutical company recently entered into a Corporate Integrity Agreement (CIA). The agreement incorporated new business rules integrating sanctions into healthcare provider (HCP) validation. An unintended consequence resulted as a higher than expected number of HCPs became ineligible for samples due to sanctions which posed no significant compliance risk.

Critical Challenges

The company was experiencing a higher than expected number of HCPs being flagged as ineligible due to sanctions. Upon further research, many of the sanctions were found to be insignificant such as "default on health education loan." Exceptions were being made to allow samples in these situations but consistency was a challenge across the target universe and documentation did not exist to demonstrate uniform diligence. The company needed a way to establish consistent business rules for the application of sanctions that would meet the demands of their CIA while ensuring samples remained available to appropriate HCPs.

Knipper Solution

A team of Knipper data experts worked closely with the pharma company to integrate accurate sanctions data and establish consistent application processes. Knipper began this by providing the company a list of all sanctions across multiple sources, each with a recommended risk level. The company was able to review each sanction and modify/define the risk level for each choosing one of three values; High, Medium, or Low. The Marketing and Sales Operations teams worked closely with Regulatory and Compliance on the sanctions definitions and identified which levels would result in HCP eligibility by brand. Utilizing AssureHCPTM, Knipper imported and updated the business rules to reflect the agreed upon standards.

The Results

- The implementation of these new standards and associated business rules completely eliminated all HCP and/or sales representative complaints for HCPs with low risk sanctions.
- Manual exceptions were no longer required and there was a reduction in total sample order rejection rates.
- Utilizing the AssureHCP™ sanctions rating system the company reduced client complaints and validation time, controlled compliance risk, and lowered overall operating cost.
